Associates Evening ’06 Celebrates Commitment and Support

New Associates Find a Need and Fill It

Roanoke College faculty teaching in newly renovated Miller Hall have encountered an unexpected glitch in the building. For it they can thank Greg and Nicole Brewer Terrill ’94, ’95.

The Terrills, who became Associates of the College in 2006, donated the hardwood tables and the upholstery and leather chairs and sofas that occupy the atrium lounges located on each of Miller’s three floors. “What has always attracted us to Roanoke College is the attention to the outside the beauty of the campus and the fit of the school within the town,” Greg explains. “We wanted to see the same care given to the inside.”

Greg, a Bedford, VA, native and former SGA president, and Nicole, of Deland, FL, met her freshman year in Dr. Denis Lape’s honors English class. Following Nicole’s graduation, the two English majors married and moved to New York to enter graduate school. Greg at Seton Hall for an MBA and Nicole at Columbia for a MPH (Master of Public Health). In 1999 they returned to the Roanoke Valley to start a family, which now includes Nora, 5, and Sally, 20 months, and for Greg to take over the Bedford-based family business, Frank Chervan, Inc. One of Greg’s first acts was to veer the furniture frame manufacturer from residential and into high-end office and health care furniture.

When the Terrills heard that their alma mater was involved in a building project, they asked Judi Nelson, then vice president for resource development, how they could help. Thus was born the idea of the atrium furniture for the English Department’s home.

“An aspect of our education for which we always have been thankful is Roanoke’s emphasis on serving the community,” says Greg, a sentiment that Nicole, who volunteers on several organizations’ boards, echoes. “This was a way we could fill a need at the school we love.”

Students in Miller love filling the chairs and sofas—so much so that their professors have to shoo them out of the lounges and into the rooms for classes to begin.
New Athletic Field Nears Completion

Work has progressed steadily on the new field and stadium adjacent to the C. Homer Baist Gymnasium and is expected to be ready for play in March. The 1,000-seat stadium and state-of-the-art artificial turf field will be formally dedicated on April 20 during Alumni Weekend ’07. The project demonstrates Roanoke College’s commitment to the importance of student development in various sports, school spirit and physical wellness and underscores the important role that athletic facilities play in this philosophy. To alum and friends who have joined the team and contributed to the new field—we extend our sincere gratitude.

Mark your calendar for the dedication celebration of the new field during Alumni Weekend—Friday, April 20, 2007!

Alumni Inspire Scholarship Support

While attending the annual Roanoke College Alumni Weekend “Honor Guard” (50-year plus graduates) meeting in 1991, Maurice Kessler ’37 and Clarence Caldwell ’41 discussed the sporadic class reunions and quarterly luncheon meetings of their “other” alma mater, William Fleming High School in Roanoke. They believed they could organize their high school classmates in a manner similar to the College’s with the objective of upholding WFHS ideals and traditions long after graduation (see Powell Endowed Scholarship below.) Kessler and Caldwell, along with Ira Peters ’37 and Calvin Schenk ’36, subsequently proposed the formation of the organization during a meeting with representatives of the other classes, and the proposal was approved unanimously. It was agreed that after each class had observed its 50th anniversary, the class members would then become eligible for membership in “The Golden Colonels.” The name was suggested by Mrs. Else Barnes Hardy, a beloved Fleming librarian, and Peters began his term as the first president of the group.

Roanoke College receives $100,000 grant from Thrivent Financial for Lutherns Foundation

President Sabine O’Hara accepts a check from Ronald H. Leiser ’64, CEO and president of the Thrivent Financial for Lutherans, with Kathryn Buchanan, Roanoke’s assistant to the president for church relations.

We are happy to announce that Roanoke College recently received a $100,000 grant from the Thrivent Financial for Lutherans Foundation. The grant is designed to strengthen Roanoke’s development work and to encourage charitable gifts to the College. It is one of 75 awarded by the foundation as part of its $4.8 million Charitable Gifting Initiative.

The grant, which is titled “Nurturing Growth,” will allow the College to expand support for the priorities and programs outlined in its recently adopted 2035 strategic plan in partnership with the Virginia and Metropolitan D.C. Synods of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America. Funds raised will be used to support such key initiatives as a professorship, scholarships for students, the College’s ambitious integrative learning initiative, co-curricular programs that enhance student engagement and outreach to the community and church-related constituencies.

“We are very pleased to receive this grant, especially since it will allow us to further strengthen our resource development efforts,” Dr. Sabine O’Hara, president of Roanoke College, said. “You might say it will bear fruit in two ways—by supporting our student-centered programs and outreach goals and by enabling us to further expand support for the work of the College. That’s the best possible situation.”

“It is our hope that this grant will strengthen Roanoke College’s ability to inform potential donors of various options available to them to financially support the College’s work,” said Brad Hewitt, president of the Thrivent Financial for Lutherans Foundation. “As people come alongside Roanoke College with charitable gifts, the College will become increasingly effective in carrying out its mission.”

The 2006 charitable gifting initiative grants ranged from $5,000 to $100,000. The 75 grants are expected to generate a total of more than $160 million in immediate or deferred monetary gifts to Lutheran institutions.

“Helping organizations communicate the benefits of tax-advantaged charitable giving to their potential donors is what this grant is all about,” said Karen Coonen, executive director of the Thrivent Financial for Lutherans Foundation. “We are delighted to support Roanoke College through this grant as we know it will greatly multiply the support it receives from those who believe in its work.”

THE WILLIAM FLEMING HIGH SCHOOL
Dr. and Mrs. Russell S. Powell Endowed Scholarship

Following her husband’s death in 1984, Mrs. Elizabeth L. Powell, William Fleming’s second principal, challenged the Roanoke College class of 1938 to match her proposed initial donation of $5,000 to establish an Endowed Scholarship Fund at Roanoke College. The Class of 1938 president, Clarence D. Caldwell, Jr., accepted the challenge on behalf of his classmates. On June 30, 1987, the $5,000 challenge goal was met and the Powell Scholarship Fund was officially established.

It was Mrs. Powell’s desire that this permanent endowment be used to provide scholarships to graduates of William Fleming High School who attend Roanoke College. Recipients must embody the values of integrity and accomplishment that Mrs. Powell encouraged in her students and demonstrate a need for financial assistance.

All Fleming alumni and friends are encouraged to contribute to this fund as often and as generously as possible. As of December 2006 there have been twenty recipients of the Dr. and Mrs. Russell S. Powell Endowed Scholarship.

The Associates Tradition

Established by the Board of Trustees in 1969, the Roanoke College Associates program exists to recognize and honor individuals and corporations who have made generous investments in the College. For 37 years, Roanoke College has relied on the support of those who share an appreciation for its rich history and promising future – the Associates.

The Associates membership totaled 680 members for the 2005-2006 fiscal year. Of these, 104 individuals and corporations were new members. In total contributions – including those to the Roanoke Fund – the Associates made cash gifts of $2,010,533, which represents more than 57% of the $3,435,169 contributed this year. The Associates’ Roanoke Fund contribution of $2,010,533 had a tremendous impact on the success of the annual effort, totaling 92 percent of the $2,288,411 received.

To join the Roanoke College Associates please contact the Resource Development office at 540-375-2043 or associates@roanoke.edu.

President’s Advisory Board New Chairs Announced

President Sabine O’Hara named new alumni leadership to the President’s Advisory Board (PAB); Pam Cabalca ’76 from Edina, Minnesota, will serve as chair, and Tom Stevens ’90 from Atlanta, Georgia, will serve as vice chair. The first meeting of the 2006-07 PAB was held on campus last September and included a review of the new Roanoke College strategic plan.

The PAB, formed in 1995, brings together a breadth of knowledge and expertise held by Roanoke’s friends and alumni from across the nation to benefit the College. The goals of the PAB include raising the level of enthusiasm for Roanoke College, encouraging knowledgeable ambassadors for the College, preparing for future leadership roles and developing a greater level of investment and support for the priorities of the College.

Perry Downing ’81, vice president for Merrill Lynch in Roanoke, has agreed to serve as the chair of the Roanoke College Planned Giving Advisory Board (PGAB) succeeding Nan Coleman, vice chair of Coleman & Massey also in Roanoke, who held the position for the past 6 years.

The PGAB is a volunteer organization whose members come from various backgrounds, both professionally and geographically. Members meet semiannually to review the College’s planned gift progress and share guest-speaker expertise. They also assist the Office of Major and Planned Gifts in developing estate planning techniques and other financial planning topics. Downing will chair the board of 40-plus members and work in conjunction with George Seals ’70, the director of major and planned gifts, and President Sabine O’Hara.

Dear Fellow Maroons!

Welcome to the first Roanoke College Alumni Chapter E-news! We are optimistic that this new source of information related to our Alumni Chapters will build a sense of community among the chapters. I encourage all of you to become involved both in your own chapter as well as other chapters.

In 2005 a task force was put together to review and restructure the Alumni Association, the Alumni Council and the by-laws. The task force consisted of representatives from various alumni chapters. Their recommendations were presented to the Alumni Council at its annual meeting last April and were unanimously approved. The final step was presentation to the Board of Trustees at its October 2006 meeting. I am happy to report that all recommendations were unanimously approved and were immediately put into effect.

You may view the Alumni Association by-laws, mission statement, and statement of purpose online at http://web.roanoke.edu/x3898.xml.

Leadership from all 11 Alumni Chapters held annual fall steering committee meetings and conference calls to map out the plans for the year. One shared goal is to increase volunteerism within each chapter. The new Alumni Association structure was presented to the volunteers along with a new “pledge commitment,” which established their selection as chair or vice-chair of the chapter for a three-year term as well as a three-year pledge to support the Roanoke Fund.

Since October the Alumni Association has co-hosted 11 holiday receptions. Eight of the receptions were hosted by trustees, parents or President’s Advisory Board members. Three were hosted by the Alumni Office. Alumni who attended the 2006 receptions totaled 1,078 compared to 1,033 attendees at the same number of chapter receptions in 2005. At each reception, a special “state-of-the-College” video was presented receiving an overwhelmingly affirmative response.

Each Alumni Chapter will host a steering committee meeting in the spring to review the College’s Strategic Plan. Alumni Weekend is scheduled for April 20-22, 2007, with the new athletic turf field dedication kicking off the weekend on Friday, April 20. This will be a celebration for the entire Roanoke College community.

Minter Receives Roanoke College Medal

Lewis S. Minter, Jr., class of 1949, received the Roanoke College Medal, the highest award bestowed upon an alumnus, on Sunday, November 12, 2006, at a special luncheon held at Epiphany Lutheran Church in Richmond, Virginia. Board of Trustees member and pastor of Epiphany Lutheran, Reverend J. Christopher Price ’75, and President Sabine U. O’Hara were on hand to present the medal to Minter.

Minter was born in Blacksburg, Virginia, graduated from Blacksburg High School and continued his education at Roanoke College, where he received a Bachelor of Arts degree in political science and history in 1949. While at Roanoke, he was a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity and was noted for winning the state oratory contest for two years.

After graduating from Washington & Lee Law School in 1957, Minter remained at W&L to serve as an assistant professor of law for several years before becoming a partner in the law firm of Woodrum & Gregory in Roanoke. In 1962 he joined the legal department of the C&O Railway in Richmond, Virginia. His distinguished legal career continued when he became a member of the legal staff of the Virginia State Corporation Commission, where he was elevated to SCC Solicitor General in 1988.

Roanoke College continues to play an important role in Minter’s life. He is a member of the Roanoke College Associates and The Society of 1842. Minter was instrumental in the donation of the Boehm porcelain bird collection to Roanoke College. The collection belonged to his aunt, Josephine Minter Almond, wife of J. Lindsay Almond, the 6th governor of Virginia. The sculptures were donated to the College in 1991 and are housed in the Fintel Library.

Hap Fisher Retires on His 100th Birthday

Dr. Charles “Hap” Fisher ’28 has retired from Roanoke College, faculty and staff, and students who admire Fisher’s accomplishments. He is the author of more than 200 publications and the holder of 72 patents in the fields of polymer chemistry.

Fisher’s centennial was covered on local television stations WDBJ-7 and WSLA-10 along with The Roanoke Times and The Salem Times Register. The story was then picked up by the Associated Press, and his 100th birthday was featured in news media across the state over the Thanksgiving holiday weekend. His last day of work before he officially retired was noted by legendary radio newsman Paul Harvey in his broadcast on November 30. The Chronicle of Higher Education is working on a story about Fisher now as an update to a story on him a few years back titled “Ancient Academics.”

Fisher’s wife, Betty Florence Snyder Fisher ’46, and the rest of the family are getting together with brothers, Dr. Richard Fisher, is a surgeon who was recognized by Roanoke College last October with the 50th annual Charles R. Brown Award for his outstanding contributions to the quality of life in Salem.

College Loses Darryl Lowry

Dr. Darryl W. Lowry, associate professor of economics at Roanoke College, died December 31, 2006, after a brief battle with cancer. A memorial service was held Wednesday, January 17, at 7:30 p.m. in Atrium Chapel. Lowry, a well-respected member of the Roanoke faculty, came to Roanoke in 1976. Prior to joining the Roanoke faculty, he taught at University of Michigan at Dearborn, Mills College (California) and at the University of California. He also served as a visiting lecturer at Regent’s College in London in 2002. Lowry is survived by his wife, Maggie Cain, and two sons, Peter and Sam.

Lowry was educated at the University of California at Berkeley. He received a bachelor’s degree in economics in 1964, a master’s degree in economics in 1966 and Ph.D. in economics in 1972. He was a member of the American Economic Association and the Southern Economic Association and spoke frequently to local community groups about economics and its role in politics.

Lowry was passionate about bringing the “real world” of economics into the classroom,” Fleming said. A scholarship is being established in Lowry’s honor. For more information on the scholarship, contact Kim Blair, director of development, at kblair@roanoke.edu or call (540) 375-2237.

Hap Fisher Retires on His 100th Birthday

Michael Styles, class of 1981, was honored at the opening game for Roanoke’s Men’s Basketball season. After Styles’ home was completely destroyed in a tragic fire, his classmates and men’s basketball teammates Ken Belton ’91, Michael Baker ’89, Bruce Hembrick ’89, Tony Bond’82 and former coach, Ed Green, joined in a special half-time presentation to surprise him with gifts from Roanoke College.

Dr. Garry Fleming, professor of business administration and economics, recalls numerous discussions with Lowry about government economic policy decisions and how these decisions could best be integrated into classroom discourse. “Darryl was passionate about bringing the ‘real world’ of economics into the classroom,” Fleming said. A scholarship is being established in Lowry’s memory. For more information on the scholarship, contact Kim Blair, director of development, at kblair@roanoke.edu or call (540) 375-2237.

Dr. Charles “Hap” Fisher ’28 has retired from his post as a research professor. It’s a loss, but something the College is trying to accept since he announced it at his 100th birthday party!

Fisher, an outstanding researcher and longtime benefactor of Roanoke College, was celebrated by the College community again on November 20, the day after his birthday. Newspaper and television reporters covered the event, which filled the Colket Center with fellow faculty, staff and students who admire Fisher’s accomplishments. He is the author of more than 200 publications and the holder of 72 patents in the fields of polymer chemistry.

Fisher’s centennial was covered on local television stations WDBJ-7 and WSLA-10 along with The Roanoke Times and The Salem Times Register. The story was then picked up by the Associated Press, and his 100th birthday was featured in news media across the state over the Thanksgiving holiday weekend. Items included gear from coach Page Moi, the current men’s basketball coach, Roanoke College yearbooks, Styles’ Hall of Fame plaque recognizing the Four Horseman, and most importantly, his Roanoke College diploma given to him by President Sabine O’Hara.
"I give to the Roanoke Fund to give back to the College, it has provided me so many opportunities that I would not have had anywhere else."
