Study Abroad in Florence, Italy!

Live and study in the Renaissance capital of Europe! Students choose English courses in the following fields: art history, anthropology, history, studio art, classical studies, religion, philosophy, sociology, and various other disciplines. The courses are small and interactive.

All students are required to take an Italian language course as part of their curriculum.

Nearly all courses have class-related excursions throughout the local area and the rest of Italy.

Community engagement through service learning or internships are options available at ISI Florence.
